Observing Effective Follower Traits (Knowing your People)

The Psychology of Followers "Why would you want to be someone called a follower? A simple answer is people follow because they derive benefits. The psychological payback of following exceeds the psychological cost of following. Throughout our human history, most humans were in small, nomadic clusters. These tribes offered protection, food, and survival. The groups with the best leader and followers had a higher probability of survival than those poorly led that consisted of poor followers. The physical benefits for followers outweighed the psychological costs and so most likely they stayed connected to the tribe. If some followers were dissatisfied with the leader's goals and agenda, they had a choice of either fighting for the top position, or leaving to join other groups." – (Project Management Institute 2021)

D. ETHICAL CHARACTERISTICS FOR LEADERSHIP

Fair – An ethical leader is fair, and they treat everyone on their team equally with no bias.

Honest – Ethical leaders are honest and must always be transparent and fair.

Respect – Listening to subordinate and valuing opinions of the team.

Value-Oriented – A good leader will make decisions based on the organization's values, and the values of the mission.

Leads by Example – Employees will mimic the action of their leader.

Makes the team a priority – Ethical leaders will promote team building and foster a sense of community.

Expectations "When setting expectations, no matter what has been said or written, if substandard performance is accepted and no one is held accountable if there are no consequences, then poor or substandard performance becomes the new standard. Therefore, leaders must enforce standards." – Jocko Willink.

E. DESCRIBE WHAT MOTIVATIONAL LEADERSHIP IS

"The only thing more contagious than a good attitude is a bad one." – David Goggins.

A motivational leader can make decisions and set clear goals for their teams.

What is the difference between Motivation and Inspiration?

Inspiration is an external influence or pulling force that compels you to achieve something.

Motivation is an internal influence or a driving force that you feel on the inside to achieve something.

A good leader should try to inspire those around them.

An effective leader will make logical decisions based on the immediate information available. If the decision was wrong, explain the rationale behind it or what led you to the conclusion and learn from it.

– OODA loop: Observe, Orient, Decide, and Act.

Know the strengths and weaknesses of subordinates and look out for their wellbeing.

"A leader must lead, but also be ready to follow. They must be aggressive, but not overbearing. A leader must be calm, but not robotic. They must be confident, but never cocky. A leader must be brave, but not foolhardy. They must have a competitive spirit, but be a gracious loser." – Jocko Willink

F. UNDERSTAND THE BASICS OF SUPERVISION AND EVALUATING WORK PERFORMANCE

An effective leader does not Micro-Manage.

An effective leader is proactive and should avoid having a "hands-off" mentality.

A leader will delegate supervision, responsibility, and authority to capable subordinates.

A leader should ensure that all tasks are understood, supervised, and accomplished.

A good supervisor can perform the tasks of his subordinates

A good leader will hold their team accountable with honest feedback on performance from each assigned task.
